

1 Algorithm in general

<https://www.datascience.com/blog/k-means-clustering>

The critical steps are choosing a correct K and overfitting. We've got to find the critical point, such that the improvement of a bigger K isn't that big anymore. The "elbow point".

The second big point is finding a good starting set of centroids. It changes a lot where you start.